

Participate

This Wiki turns the business model of some SEOs upside down. But there are enough reasons for professional SEOs to contribute to this Wiki:

- The Wiki is here to stay. You can ignore it, the same way as Encyclopædia Britannica has ignored Wikipedia. While Wikipedia has successfully established itself in the market, Britannica has problems to stay profitable.
- Times are changing. So far, it was enough to sell customers SEO basics for big money. We want to attack this business model and make the market more transparent. But our authors want to earn money as well. Because good consulting is always wanted.
- We offer our authors some incentives. We will publish the Top-25 authors in a dedicated list. Use your URL as user name to get your company identified with your accomplishments.

Tasks

We need help at the following fields:

- New content is always welcome.
- Improve existing content. That includes facts checking, content structure, search engine optimization, spelling and grammar, organization of content and graphical representation.
- Please improve internal linking.
- Recommend this page. Add links to SEO Wiki on your site. Perform organic link building, but not more.
- Watch for Spam. This site is misused more and more by SEO wannabes who think to add links on this page. As a rule of thumb: this site is not accepting permanent outbound links. Exception: as better added content is, as longer outbound (nofollow) links can stay on the page.
